Diboll wins Bay school board seat

By ELLIS CUEVAS

Ms. Betty Diboll defeated Ms. Linda Penrose 262-143 yesterday in a race for school board member, as a representative from Waveland to the Bay St. Louis Separate Municipal School System.

A total of 408 registered electors from the City of Waveland and the area outside the Bay St. Louis corporate limits, voted in the special election.

There were three spoiled ballots.

The election was held from 2 to 5 p.m. at Bay Senior High during a downpour. Ms. Diboll, elated over the victory said, "I am very happy to have won and I promise to do my best for the people, especially the youth. Thanks to the many people who braved the elements today and got out to vote."

Ms. Penrose congratulated the winner and said, "I am glad we had a good voter turnout, and I wish to thank everyone who voted."

Ms. Diboll was elected for a term of one year to fill the unexpired term of Mrs. Jean Townsend who moved out of state last year.

Dr. John Levens has been filling Townsend's vacancy on an interim basis.

Ms. Diboll will be the second school board member to be seated since Feb. 20 when James Ginn was appointed by the Bay St. Louis Council to fill the expired term of Robert Hamilton, who after serving 20 years announced he did not wish serve on the school board.

The school board is composed of five members, three are appointed by the Bay Council and two are elected from Waveland and the outside area of Bay

St. Louis corporate limits.

James Shippey was elected chairman and Pete Chapman, secretary before balloting started. Ms. Barbara Rappold and Ms. Beverly Zimmerman were appointed to serve as managers.

County schools eye community education

By RICH ADAMS

The Hancock County School District is in initial phases of a proposed community education program in Hancock County, with the possibility of coordinating the education program with the Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District.

Hancock County School Superintendent Terry Randolph said Thursday that he has noted much public interest in a community education program from county residents, and hopes to combine the activities with the Bay system.

Dr. William Hetrick, director of the center for community education at the University of Southern Mississippi, said Thursday that interest in community education is growing on the Coast, adding that Long Beach recently joined a number of Coast cities to feature community education.

Dr. Hetrick was slated to make a film presentation at a recess meeting of the County School Board, Thursday, but failure of a quorum at the meeting for ced cancellation.

Hetrick said education is a life-long process which goes from the cradle to the grave, and feels maximizing services within a given community can best be done by delivering it at the neighborhood level.

"The school is already paid for and belongs to the community," Hetrick said Thursday.

"Use of the school building should not be limited to persons in the age group of six-year-olds to 18-year-olds," the educator added.

Hetrick said classes such as those offered in community education can be helpful to a community.

"The classes are based on the needs and wants of the community. Before we get to what the community needs, we must offer what it wants," he said.

"Perhaps a family is having problems with home economics. The family will not want to take a class in home economy to start with, but perhaps after a semester of 'Macrame, the fa-

State Library conference 'a learning experience'

By RICH ADAMS

The Governor's Library Conference in Jackson last week "opened doors" for cooperation and understanding between public and school libraries, according to one of three Hancock County library representatives attending the function.

Fran Trombley, chairman of the Hancock County library trustees, said the three-day long conference was "a total learning experience" which was "totally worthwhile."

Ms. Trombley attended the conference with Hancock County Library Director Prima Wismack and Library Trustee Judy McCormick.

According to Ms. Trombley, school libraries ranked high on the list of priorities for improvement in Mississippi libraries.

"In most school systems there is not a certified librarian at each school library," Ms. Trombley said.

"The school systems get by with this because the requirements of accreditation reads that each system must have a certified school librarian, and the school staffs the remaining libraries with non-certified staff members," she continued.

"A plan should be formulated in which the school administrators get together with the librarian, review any special subject areas, and order material based on subject areas," she added.

"School librarians should be trained to be able to function properly, and to be able to teach students how to use and maintain audio-visual equipment," Ms. Trombley said.

In a resolution the library conference presented to the state legislature, the librarians called for laws to prohibit use of school libraries as detention halls and study halls.

Another resolution presented to the House of Representatives and the Senate concerned increasing county and municipal millage for libraries.

"At present, state law prohibits county supervisors to earmark more than two mills for the library and the municipalities to give more than 1.25 mills to the library," Ms. Trombley said.

"The conference resolution asks the law to be modified to permit a four mill county tax levy for library support, and a two mill city tax levy for the library," she continued.

"We also urged that the legislature pass bills presently before them which will provide a 50 cent per capita grant to public libraries," she added.

Ms. Trombley said the Hancock County Board of Supervisors is "rare," in that it allows a percentage of revenue sharing to support the library.

"Thanks to the gracious board of supervisors, we have extra revenue sharing funds which we use to buy books," Ms. Trombley said.

"It is a rare case that a board of supervisors understand the need and importance of a library system," she added.

Ms. Trombley said a new system called the "Com-Catalog" is available to libraries, which enables them to borrow material not available at a local library from other states in the nation.

"Say someone was working on an unusual masters degree, and the material he needed was not available at the local library," Ms. Trombley said.

"That person, with the Com-Catalog, could have the local facility borrow the material from another library in another state, if it were available," she added.

Ms. Trombley said that at the end of the convention, many librarians had obtained a new insight into the library problems.

One delegate of the conference, Ricki Brown from Forest County, was quoted by Ms. Trombley as saying, "I learned so much...I found out what the world is like on the other side of the checkout counter."

Ms. Trombley said a library conference will be conducted in Washington, D.C. in October, but added no local delegates will be attending.

Beach pilings dangerous says Waveland Alderman

By LESLIE WILLIAMS

Ward Two Waveland Alderman Jack Toomey says pilings remaining from damaged piers along Hancock County beaches are 'dangerous,' and he wants them removed.

In addition to being a safety hazard, Toomey says, the pilings will act as a deterrent to tourists in upcoming months.

"Just think of all the people who will drive along county beaches to visit the Wave Pool in Waveland. During that drive they will see the dangerous pilings and fear going into Mississippi Sound waters," Toomey emphasized.

Other potential dangers of the pilings listed by Toomey include lacerations from pilings and barnacles on pilings, damage to boats and loss of life.

"The problem is," elaborated the Alderman, "you may see part of a jagged edge now while the tide is low, but when the tide rises the piling becomes invisible."

"Invisible until a swimmer is cut across the chest by a piling, or until kids diving or playing in Sound waters land face first into a jagged edge."

"Invisible until someone running in the water slips his foot or slips and falls on a piling," Toomey admonished. The Hancock County Board of Supervisors unanimously adopted a resolution February 1976 calling for removal of pilings along the beach from Washington Street to Bayou Cadet remaining from Hurricane Camille.

Since adoption, the supervisors have varied in execution of the resolution. The resolution and minutes surround

Bus collides into truck

By LESLIE WILLIAMS

A Gulf Transport Co. Bus collided into the rear of a dump truck 8 a.m. Friday during an attempt by a bus driver to pass the truck on I-10 east, reported police.

D.E. Badger, driver of the bus, sustained a small cut on his arm. No one else was injured, stated Mississippi Highway Patrolman Hershel Ladner.

"He (Badger) would have knocked me completely off the road if I hadn't been carrying a full load," exclaimed Leroy More, truck driver for Pat Fore Construction Co. in Gulfport.

The bus contained no passengers. Badger was charged with failure to yield right of way, said Ladner.

The Diamondhead Fire Department and Hancock County Sheriff's Department assisted in the accident.

Three injured in accident

By ELLIS CUEVAS

Three people were injured in automobile accidents yesterday, with one critically injured, reported the Hancock County Sheriff's Department.

Deputies Delbert Seay and Dennis Tartavole investigated a three car pile-up at 11:55 a.m. on Highway 603 at First Street, one mile north of US-90.

Mobile Medic transferred Clarence Pipkin to Gulfport Memorial Hospital after emergency treatment at Hancock General.

Seay said Pipkin of Bay St. Louis, driver of a Ranchero, appeared in critical condition.

Ms. Irene Shaw driver of a LTD Ford, the second vehicle involved in the accident, and her son Melvin, 7, were taken to Hancock General Hospital for emergency treatment. Ms. Shaw's address was listed as Rt. 3, Picayune.

A third vehicle driven by Charles Morris, Rt. 7, Lucedale and passenger Larry Parker, Rt. 3, Pass Christian appeared to escaped injury, according to the deputy.

Seay reported charges are pending, and the wreck is under investigation.

A wreck involving two trucks was reported at 1:15 p.m. one and one-half mile south of US-90 on Lower Bay Road.

Drivers in the accident were Lynwood Rutherford Jr., Waveland, and Ms. Martha Ferrante, Hampton, Mass. There were no injuries reported by Seay and Tartavole who investigated the accident.

Seay said Ms. Ferrante had relatives living in the area.

A spokesman for Waveland Police reported no accidents Friday or Saturday night.

Bay St. Louis patrolmen Louis Hearty and Charles Bols investigated a third wreck, involving two cars on Blue Meadow Road Saturday. Patrolmen reported no injuries.

FmHA offers rural loan program

Savings and loan associations will soon be able to make additional home loans to rural and small town families by using a loan guarantee program now offered by Farmers Home Administration (FmHA).

Action by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board (FHLB), currently underway, will change the rules under which savings and loan associations operate so as to permit them to use the FmHA home loan guarantee program.

In announcing the new cooperative effort, Mark Hazard, FmHA State Director, explained that the agency may guarantee loans made by savings and loan associations and other lenders up to 90 percent of their value.

"This new initiative," Hazard continued, "will make it possible for rural families in the $15,000 to $20,000 adjusted annual income range to finance homes with smaller than usual downpayments and a longer payback period - up to 33 years."

"The downpayment required by home buyers, under the new program, may be as low as 3 percent of the first $25,000 and 5 percent of the amount over $25,000."

"This is part of an overall national effort to make it possible for rural Americans to live in a decent home in an acceptable environment," the official said.

CROP REPORT

COTTON

Cotton prices dropped slightly in February after averaging about 60 cents per pound between August and December.

Spot market prices for strict low middling cotton have come down about six cents a pound, but they are still nine cents higher than a year ago, said Dr. O.A. Cleveland, marketing specialist, Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

"This decline may be attributed to prospects for a larger cotton crop this year," he explained.

"In early January, producers indicated they would plant 14 million acres of cotton this spring, an increase of six percent from last season. If farmers carry out these plans and good weather prevails, the 1979 cotton crop could reach 13 million bales."

Economist urges insurance review

By NORINE BARNES

How much home insurance do you have? Has your insurance program been adjusted to keep pace with the increasing value of your home?

A home built in the average community in 1970 for $25,000 would cost over $50,000 to build today. Replacement cost of homes built before 1970 are even greater.

How much home insurance do you need? Homes should be insured to 80 percent of replacement value.

You will need the help of a real estate broker, insurance agent, appraiser or contractor to establish a dollar amount. Be sure to ask if there is a charge for figuring replacement cost.

An 80 percent policy is worth only its face value should the house be completely destroyed. Some consumers may want to consider the coverage at 90 or 100 percent replacement.

Ask your insurance company about "inflation guard endorsement." This type of coverage automatically increases every 3 months. The increase is usually 1 or 2 percent.

Consumers need to review the home insurance policy.

The FHLB Board rule change, which will be soon finalized, will make it possible for savings and loan associations and FmHA to jointly meet home financing needs of more families who have the ability to make monthly payments but lack resources to meet the customary substantial downpayment requirements.

"The program has the potential," Hazard explained, "to make a sizeable impact in

HARDWOOD'S DAY COMING

Mississippi's fortuitous geographical position in the much talked about sunbelt is real feather in her bonnet even today, but even more significant for the future is the fact that the Magnolia State also sits astride the great Southeastern rainbelt.

Couple these two assets with the sharp upswing in demand for timber and the future of this state's 16.7 million acres of forest lands brightens significantly.

Sparkle is added to the picture as it is realized that Mississippi's combination of soil, rainfall, sunshine and latitude place us in the fore of future forestry development for a wide range of tree species.

Already extreme southwest Mississippi is considered the nation's prime forestry growing area, but evidence is mounting that in the decades to come the whole state may well ride the crest of utilization of the largest renewable resource of modern times.

While Mississippi's forestry industry cuts its teeth on its virgin pine lands in the southern piney woods area, the second time around likely will equally favor any part of the state as the rising demand for hardwoods modify a somewhat topsy turvy timber price structure that historically favored pine softwoods.

"Southwest Farm Press" recently reported a seller's market for forest products coming out of eastern Oklahoma, barely in the rainbelt of the eastern U.S. The cut has doubled lately, and hardwoods long ignored for their commercial timber value - have soared in price.

Among those customers creating the new demand are furniture makers, gunstock manufacturers, paneling and veneer utilizers, and others.

The aesthetic appeal of mixed hardwood and pine forests is matched by new demands for a variety of timber varieties due to the differing characteristics of each - whether measured by beauty of grain, fuel advantages, production of nuts for human consumption, or mast for game.

The energy shortage has sent a new generation to the woods for fuel for fireplaces and wood stoves. Many a modern housewife today has become as knowledgeable about the splitting and burning characteristics of the various woods as were their forebears a generation or so back.

The paths of this story is found in the fact that many

Mississippians for many years have treated their woodlands badly - taking each specie for granted with not enough attention to protecting and managing those species which best serve their differing needs.

It is lamentable that such aristocrats of the forest kingdom as the white and red oaks apparently are diminishing over the state as urban developments claim additional acreage and firewood seekers oftentimes do not observe the old adage of cutting cull trees for firewood. The tall, straight ones do split better and make more handsome wood stacks.

Since pioneer times the white oaks, with more rot resistance, were cut for rails, picket fencing, basket weaving, and a multitude of other useful purposes around the rural homestead. This too has been taken a toll, oftentimes not replaced.

Yet, despite these overuses of the better species of hardwoods as a whole in Mississippi, hardwoods generally are fairing a bit better than softwoods in reproducing themselves faster than they are being cut.

According to the Mississippi Forestry Association, currently for every cubic foot of softwood harvested in Mississippi, 1.1 cubic feet are grown.

While for hardwoods, 1.4 cubic feet currently grow for every cubic foot harvested.

And both of these figures can be greatly improved with better forestlands management.

Fires, idle acres, mismanagement and other factors still are taking too great a toll of Mississippi's annual forestry output.

Yet, the future is inestimably bright for astute landowners of this state.

Fast work saves home

Mayor Larry Bennett
Court House
Bay St. Louis, Miss.
Dear Larry:

My wife and I want to thank you and your fire department and gas department for the fine work that they did at our home on Friday, February 3, 1979.

Our home was struck by lightning at 2:45 p.m., causing a fire on the north side of our home.

For a few minutes it looked mighty grim. Your fire department as a whole really did a wonderful job. It was under control in a matter of minutes.

Besides the efficient and professional way they went about the job, we appreciate the care that they took in trying to keep the water damage down.

We are most fortunate and thankful for having the job well done, which could not have been without the speedy arrival of the fire department.

Once more many thanks from Mary and I for services rendered.

Sincerely,
Charles A. Breath, Jr.

Library thanks
fire department

My Dear Mr. Mayor:

The Friends of the Hancock County Library System want to commend and heartily thank two members of the Bay St. Louis Fire Department for the American National Red Cross Cardio-Pulmonary Resuscitation (CPR) course they taught for us.

On February 6 and 13, instructors Ann Peneguy and Willumitis made enthusiastic presentations for which, we understand, they go uncompensated monetarily.

We hope that you will pass along our feelings about these two fine people to the fire chief, if he is their immediate superior.

We would also like to encourage more organizations to sponsor CPR classes so that as many members of the general public as possible can be trained in this life saving technique.

Very Truly Yours,
Judith McCormick
President

County Library System

WOUNDED EAGLE
By CONGRESSMAN
TRENT LOTT
5th District,
Mississippi

The American eagle, the proud symbol of this country's strength, power and vision, has soared for the past two centuries to heights once thought to be unattainable. But lately, the symbolic eagle has seemed to fly lower and more slowly as U.S. credibility is threatened at diverse points around the world.

Our proud symbol has become a wounded eagle. The international situations that are confronting America today may be traced to the lack of a clear direction in foreign policy, although some of the situations are not of our own making. In Iran, for example, allegiance to religious beliefs apparently was a major cause of the shah's overthrow.

Iran had been one of America's closest friends in the Middle East. But now Americans have been evacuated, the U.S. Embassy raided, a U.S. Marine sergeant abducted from his hospital bed (he was later released) and millions of dollars in sensitive U.S. military hardware confiscated. The various factions which united to depose the shah appear now to be on the verge of war with each other as the struggle for real control of the country takes place.

There are other examples of damaged American credibility.

The President, on his recent visit to Mexico, was publicly humiliated by Mexico's president. This public taunting should never have been tolerated, but it does highlight the low esteem in which this country is held; in Afghanistan, U.S. Ambassador Adolph "Spike" Dubs was gunned down when police, accompanied by their Russian "advisors," stormed a room where he was being held hostage by terrorists;

Despite the hoopla which accompanied the President's dramatic announcements after the Camp David summit between Israel and Egypt, those two countries have made little additional headway. The U.S.'s effectiveness as a mediator is questionable.

A small band of economic terrorists called OPEC (Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries) continues to harass the U.S. into submitting to their energy blackmail;

Russia and Red China are involved in clashes over Vietnam's invasion of Cambodia. While on first glance it's not all that bad to have communists battling each other, what does the future hold for Thailand, a friend of the U.S. which could be the next target for aggression in Indo-China?

The President issues what amounts to little more than a suggestion that Cuba return some $2 billion worth of property belonging to Americans that was seized by Castro.

The point of all this is that America, a nation carved with sweat and blood from a piece of North American wilderness, may be losing its grip on the handle of international affairs. While we can't expect to be the world's shepherd, the emergence of hot spots across the globe can be blamed in part on the absence of a coherent U.S. foreign policy.

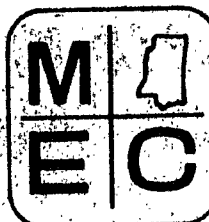

I sense a mood in the country today that people are growing tired of being pushed around and portrayed as scapegoats. The only answer to this dilemma is strong, effective and consistent leadership at the top level of American government.

The wounded eagle must be made whole again.

MISSISSIPPI ECONOMIC COUNCIL -
THE STATE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

The President of the Mississippi Economic Council today commended the House Ways and Means Committee for approving a property reappraisal bill which calls for uniform assessment of all property for tax purposes.

G. E. Beard of Jackson, president of the statewide organization, said the 30 percent assessment ratio of all property for tax purposes included in the bill follows the uniform provisions of the State Constitution, and he urged legislators to act favorably on this bill.

The committee bill follows a Hinds County Chancery Court order requiring the State Tax Commission to meet its responsibility for equalizing assessments for property taxes among the counties.

"If classification of property for tax purposes were enacted," said Beard, "it would legalize a system of unequal assessments."

"Presently," he said, "property taxation from county to county is operating under a de facto classification system without regard to provisions in the State Constitution."

"Equalization of property taxes statewide," Beard continued, "would place the tax burden fairly on every property owner. Classification of property for tax purposes, on the other hand, gives preferential treatment to certain taxpayers and discriminates against others."

Beard pointed out that a classification system is a deception and simply substitutes indirect taxes for direct tax payments.

"For example," Beard said, "the homeowner - always the most favored class - may think he's getting a tax break. But, when he purchases the goods and services of commercial taxpayers - the highest class - the homeowner will pay taxes indirectly through higher prices."

Administration of the property tax system in Mississippi has been called the single most important weakness in the state's tax structure by the Mississippi Economic Council, which has long supported equalization of assessments and opposes classification of property for ad valorem taxation.

REPORT TO MISSISSIPPIANS

The Natchez Trace Parkway is a little more than three-quarters completed. The Department of the Interior, which has authority over the project, continues to deny support of the Trace as a part of our park system.

Therefore, I am seeking passage of a bill which would direct the Secretary of the Interior to complete the Natchez Trace within five years. It is not sensible to prolong this project year after year, leaving stretches of it useless. We must move ahead to complete the trace so its benefits, not only as a transportation artery, but as a source of history and beauty, can be realized by our people as well as visitors. Tourists from throughout the nation will come to enjoy the Trace when it is completed.

The 444-mile Trace which runs between Natchez and Nashville is truly one of the great historic and scenic routes in our country. It was originally an Indian trail, and in 1801 the Choctaws and Chickasaws by treaty allowed the United States to use the Trace for travel and trade. President Thomas Jefferson ordered the Army to clear the road to a width of 16 feet, and by 1820 the Trace was heavily used. It played a key part in the expansion of our country, as well as in the growth of trade and defense of the territory. Andrew Jackson earned the name "Old Hickory" by his stamina in leading the Tennessee militia over the Trace in the War of 1812, and used the road to bring his army north after the battle of New Orleans.

Mississippi and Tennessee began recognizing the historic importance of the Trace as early as the beginning of the century by placing markers along its route. Mississippi, Tennessee and Alabama joined in asking Congress to designate the Trace as a national parkway in 1935. The trace includes 310 miles in Mississippi, 101 miles in Tennessee and 33 miles in Alabama. The three states have cooperated fully in purchasing rights-of-way, as they agreed to do if the federal government would build, maintain and police the Parkway.

The federal government met its part of the bargain in the first few years after construction began. About 120 miles were placed under contract in the first five years; however, funding since then has been spasmodic. The Department of the Interior refused to adopt a plan for the completion of the Trace on a fixed schedule. During most years the administration has not recommended any money for the Trace. As a consequence, I, along with other members of the Congress from Mississippi have had to add whatever funds we could. Again this year, the administration has left the Natchez Trace out of the budget.

Last year we were fortunate to be able to get the Congress to add $19 million for this purpose to the Department of the Interior appropriation bill. We will try to add whatever we can this year despite tight fiscal restraints. I hope we can band together during this Congress and pass this five-year completion bill.

A total of 89 miles remains to be constructed, 45 miles of which is in Mississippi. There remains 10 miles to be built in Northeast Mississippi, 15 miles in the Jackson area, 11 miles near Port Gibson, and 9 miles in the Natchez area.

Truly, the Natchez Trace Parkway should have been completed long ago. The part in use now is a tremendous asset to the people. It carries a huge volume of automobile traffic, and it is also a thing of great beauty. Perhaps through passage of the bill I am proposing we will soon be able to realize the full worth of this scenic, historic route.

March is National Social Work month

Statistics on domestic violence are alarming - over 100,000 cases of child abuse and neglect are reported annually; approximately 25 percent of all murders occur within the family; and, recent samplings of high school seniors indicate that 62 percent had used physical force on a sibling.

But, according to the National Association of Social Workers (NASW), now observing National Professional Social Work Month, even though violence in the family is widespread, it is by no means untreatable.

Because professional social workers are intimately involved with helping these vulnerable families, the 80,000-member NASW has long been concerned with the improvement of the social services delivery system and the continued training of practitioners who must handle potentially explosive families.

Currently, the Association is offering a workshop that provides practical help to all professionals who must deal with abused children - one form of family violence - and their families.

Over the past few years, research has shown that families under social and economic pressures, such as unemployment and alcoholism, often react with violence when unable to solve their problems.

It takes a great deal of skill and experience to help families who are caught up in a cyclical web of violence, and the professional training that social workers receive in academic settings lays the groundwork for the additional professional development and continuing education which helps them understand how to be helpful in this domestic turmoil.

NASW and its 55 chapters uses National Professional Social Work Month each year to increase public awareness of social problems in the community and the profession's involvement in solving these problems.

illusion was held by a matching lace Juliet caplet.

She carried a bouquet of silk roses in shades of rust, rose, eggshell, and French beige.

Book Review

MUSEUM PEOPLE

By JOE PILET

The next best thing to actually visiting the Smithsonian Institution and meeting the heads of many departments is to read the book "Museum People," which was written by Peggy Thomson.

Perhaps the ideal approach would be to first read the book and then visit our "Nation's Attic."

What Ms. Thomson did was to talk with museum people to learn from the many people who work in the institution about their various jobs.

By reading the book one learns who collects and what they collect.

For example, one collector attended an auction and bought George Washington's military camp stool, paying $12,500 for it!

Every Summer the Smithsonian features performing arts with an outdoor Festival of American Folklife.

Attending this event is a vacation highlight for families who enjoy doing things together and history in action is impressive as well as entertaining.

"The People in the Arts" is a chapter in Ms. Thomson's book that tells who performs, how they are selected, and what they do.

Two very fine features of the book are its glossary and its index. These features are the index covers the people who work in the museum and ##### glossary helps with unfamiliar

words such as abrade, canid, dikdik, - and the interesting fact that a "croker" sack isn't a bag for carrying home the catch of fish called "crokers," but a southern expression meaning "crucifix" sack.

The work of collecting, keeping track of the vast number of things housed in the complex, exhibiting, conserving, swapping - all this and a great deal more is reported in beautiful, understandable language in a manner such as a newspaper reporter might cover a feature story.

Its a book you can "pick up and put down," but you really won't want to put it down and you will want to refer to it frequently.

Prentice-Hall, Inc. of Englewood Cliffs, New Jersey, did a nice job of printing "Museum People," which sells for $8.95 per copy.

It is bound in natural linen,
and it is illustrated by Joseph Low who is highly touted as a graphic artist.

If I wanted to be critical (and I do) his illustrations add nothing to the books enjoyment and look to me like something a person would do while "doodling" on a pad and listening to a boring and lengthy telephone conversation.

But buy the book anyway,
you can always remove the jacket and cover up the illustrations while you read a chapter - and well worth the book!

all true churches. Not once did all their faults and human failures notwithstanding.

Neither are we at liberty to

Your church is the most important institution in your life, and that of your family and community. No community is any better than its churches.

When you stumble she stadies; when you fall she lifts;
when you suffer she consoles;
when you go down in the valley she lightens the way.

Your church stands up for and defends the best interest of your home, your family and your business. She makes your home, your community, your state and nation, a better place in which to live and rear
your family.

From the dawn of our history as a nation, it has been the historic churches which lead the way for better government, better education, better economic, physical and social standards.

They have stood as a bastion against wrong and for higher moral values and spiritual perception. Bible-believing churches always lead in the battle for decency and points
the way to God without respect of persons.

The Lord's churches have taught your civilization all it knows about Honesty, Love, Truth, Hope and Heaven.
They exalt Christ, God's Son and Man's saviour! Your church needs you, but most of all, you need your church!

The so-called electronics church is competing for the dollars which really should be given to God through your local church. This appeal is very powerful and sophisticated.

The highly-polished, well-heeled, glib-tongued radio and TV preacher is making every sensational appeal he can conjur up to get your financial support, despite the fact that you know very little about who he is, his morals, what he believes about many important doctrines; or, for that matter, what he actually does with your money once it gets into his hands. This is financial support your neighborhood church sorely needs.

When you, your family, or neighbors experience misfortune - sickness, sorrow, or even death, it is your local pastor and church who cares and comes to your rescue - not that fat-cat radio or TV preacher.

This is no condemnation of many worthy soul-winning programs supported by established churches.

It is the local established churches who have traditionally made and maintained better communities. It is your local pastors - the pastors of your local churches who know you and your family personally, and who pray for and witness to your unsaved loved ones.

Blue Cross sponsors 'fitness' essay contest

Mississippi's elementary and high school students will have an opportunity during March to exercise their creative talents and at the same time promote fun in physical fitness.

As part of a statewide
"Fitness Is Fun" public education program that kicked off in November with a 10,000
meter run, Blue Cross & Blue Shield of Mississippi is sponsoring an art competition for elementary students and an essay competition for high school seniors.

"The purpose of the fitness promotion is to motivate the people of Mississippi to adopt good health habits and to reduce - or eliminate - bad health habits," said Blue Cross and Blue Shield President W.C. Mosley.

"We believe that encouraging people to take better care of themselves is the only long-term solution in containing a health care cost rising at a rate double that of inflation."

Mosley said that if something is not done now, the price tag for health care in the country could reach $225 billion by 1980.

The theme for both the art and essay competitions is
"Fun Through Physical Fitness."

High school seniors participating in the essay contest are required to mail their papers directly to the Blue Cross and Blue Shield organization where an independent committee will select the best paper from each school and the overall statewide winners.

Statewide winners will receive scholarships to the college or university of their choice in the amounts of $500 for first place; $300 for second; and $200 for third. Local winners will receive special fitness plaques and "Fitness Is Fun" T-shirts.

In the art competition,
entries from grades 1-3 and 4-6 will be judged by a special panel within each school.
Winning entries will be sent to Blue Cross & Blue Shield of Mississippi where an outside committee will select the top three statewide winners.

Local winners will receive a certificate and T-shirt; statewide winners in each category (grades 1-3 and 4-6) will receive savings bonds of $100 for first place; $75 for second; and $50 for third.

The deadline for entries is March 31, 1979. Additional information may be obtained through all Mississippi schools participating or by writing
"Fitness Is Fun" School Competitions, P.O. Box 1043, Jackson, Ms. 39205.

Bay council oks cave-in repair

By ELLIS CUEVAS
The Bay St. Louis Council awarded an emergency contract to W&S Construction Company of Biloxi to repair a sewer cave-in and manhole repair in the 400 block of Carroll Avenue.

The bid was awarded to W&S on the condition the firm would be able to start. An alternate motion was made by the Council, which authorized the acceptance of a second bid by Coast Heavy Equipment Co. of Pass Christian on the repair work if W&S would be unable to start at the prescribed time.

Joe Brown of Joe Brown Engineers, Inc. was officially authorized to serve as the engineering firm for the project. Brown received two other bids on the project, one from Beta Enterprises Gulfport and Graham Construction Co., Pascagoula.

The contract is to be done on an hourly basis, estimated to cost $11,070 by W&S.

The bid by Coast Equipment was $10,187, but proposed only three and half days to complete the project. However, based on a seven day basis for completion, their bid figured at $20,203.

The city will supply supplies and materials to make repairs of the sewer lines and also trucks to remove excessive materials.

Brown gave the Council a figure of $35 per hour for his services and $20 per hour for an on-the-job inspector. Brown said the amount of time for his services wouldn't be very long and the inspector should only be there during certain parts of the repair work.

Brown said the length of time between repairs of the cave-in should be limited, as he felt more and more damage was being done every day the repairs go undone.

Councilman Pete Benvenuti questioned Brown about proper coverage of insurance on the contractor, and the Council was assured by him insurance would be checked and proper amounts carried.

Council was to act on Monday on the cave-in but were unable to act for a lack of a quorum. All Council members were at the Thursday emergency meeting.

ding the issue state:

"The Board finds all private piers in the area were destroyed during Hurricane Camille in 1969, and that there were left many pilings unsightly and hazardous which could cause injury to public in use of said beaches.

"The Board further finds the county should take the necessary steps to remove said pilings, but before doing so give notice to public of its intent to remove said pilings after a period of 60 days during which time private owners may remove and salvage said pilings if they so chose.

"The Board moves the county take necessary steps to remove pilings from private piers that were damaged by Hurricane Camille, but that a notice first be given to the public of their right to remove said pilings at their expense during a sixty day period, after which time the county would then proceed with the removal of said pilings."

Beat Five Supervisor James Travira said Friday he has moved all piling remains along the beach area in his beat, which spans from Washington Street to Ulman Avenue.

"I contracted the job to remove the pilings in 1976 and it cost a little better than $6,000 to complete the work," said Travira.

Beat Four Supervisor Sam Perniciaro stated Friday he plans to remove pilings in his beat in the near future.

"Myself and my foreman went to my beach area, which is from Washington Street to Nicholson Avenue, approximately four weeks ago to determine how we can get the pilings removed," said Perniciaro.

"The Board advertised in the newspaper about a year ago that the pilings would be removed, but nothing has been done yet," added the Beat Four Supervisor.

Beat Two Supervisor Alton Kellar announced Friday he does not plan to remove pilings along Beat Two beach area, which covers the area between Nicholson Avenue to Waveland Avenue, because the cost remove the pilings would be "astronomical."

"A small percentage of beach residents complained a couple of years ago when they were told the pilings would be removed," Kellar recalled.

"The residents said they were going to use the pilings to re-build their piers and the piers were private property."

"However," Kellar emphasized, "the Board has legal authority to remove the pilings."

Toomey contends price should not be considered "when you are talking of preventing human injury or loss of human life."

Beat One Supervisor Bert Courge said Saturday, he agrees, with Toomey but the cost of removing pilings in his beat, which extends from Waveland Avenue to Bayou Cadet, prevents him from accomplishing the task.

"I would love to see the pilings moved and if I get the money I will remove them," Courge added.

"I have not done anything yet to remove the pilings," he continued.

The Beat One beach area extends from Waveland Avenue to Bayou Caddy.

mily will look at the home economy class and take it," Hetrick explained.

"Eventually, this type of course will improve the lifestyle of the community," he added.

The doctor said many improvements among the community will result from this type of program.

"Some of the improvements Hetrick has recorded are maximum use of school and community facilities and recreational, educational, health, and social opportunities are provided for all ages.

Hetrick stresses that the school districts and local municipal officials should coordinate a program among themselves to prevent duplication.

"Say the city built tennis courts with lights, and the school built tennis courts elsewhere without lights," Hetrick explained.

"If the school and city had been cooperating in a community education plan, the school property could have been used and both the city and school would have lit tennis courts to use," he added.

The educator also pointed out that school vandalism might be halted with the night education program.

"Vandalism occurs at night when the school is empty. If community education were adopted, the school would be in use during evening hours," Hetrick said.

"Eventually, the vandals themselves might join the program and then they would feel a sense of ownership. The vandalism would eventually stop," he explained.

Many schools along the Coast have initiated the program, which offers business education programs, vocational programs, and enrichment courses.

"In Long Beach, we had over 1,000 people sign up for the first semester," Hetrick said.

Randolph said the County Board will study the proposal at a meeting Monday.

Hawks reach finals in State playoff

The Hancock North Central Hawks moved into the finals of the State 'A' championship Friday night by defeating Boonville 68-49.

Coach Roland Ladner's Hawks were led by Moses Hill, scoring 21 points to give their 27th victory of the season. Alan Dedeaux contributed 17, Steve Nunn with 12 and playmaker Barry Arcement's 12.

The Hawks split with Boonville last season, winning at home and losing in the Blue Devil's gym.

Ladner was pleased with Hill's performance against Boonville as well as his play Wednesday in the come from behind victory over Tchula 72-71.

The Hawks faced the Stone County Tomcats at 7 p.m. last night for the State championship.

Wednesday Barry Arcement sank a 16 foot jumpshot to win the game for the Hawks in the final 15 seconds to put the HNC roundballers over the Tchula five in a preliminary elimination game, 72-71.

The Hawks were trailing by 13 points with little more than three minutes left in the game, but a rally set the HNC five in front at the end of the match.

With 30 seconds remaining in the game, Dean Shaw was fouled by a Tchula player and hit both ends of a one-and-one to add the Hawk comeback.

Junior Forward Moses Hill paced the HNC win with 20 points, followed with outstanding senior Alan De-deux's 19 points and Arcement's 12.

Joe Anderson canned 24 points to orchestrate the Tiger team in their losing effort, with Earliest Wilson and Michael Fisher adding 16 and 14 points each, respectively.

BUILDERS KNOW BEST

"One answer to rising energy costs is building homes to meet E3 construction standards. E3 Homes can save up to 60% on heating and cooling costs. Naturally, homebuyers find this an appealing feature just as I do in my E3 Home. I've found that building E3 Homes is good business."

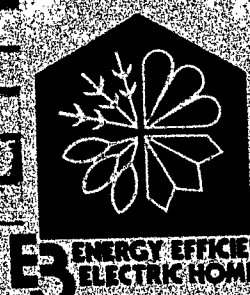

CECIL ROYD QUEST, INC. GULFPORT

More southeast Mississippi builders, contractors, and realtors than ever before are discovering that E3 construction is the preferred and accepted way to build a home today.

Proper insulation, ridge ventilation, insulated exterior doors, double glazed windows, insulated or interior ductwork and the electric heat pump combine to give the homeowner up to 60% savings on heating and cooling costs.

No matter what size or style house you are planning to build or buy get the facts on E3 construction first from Mississippi Power Company.

Consultant teaches physical education utilizing games

By LESLIE WILLIAMS
A parachute, brooms, hoops, ropes, balls, and records with lyrics like "reach for fly, grab fly, pluck and stamp fly" were but a few devices used by Physical Education Consultant Kermit Davis during a recent workshop for students and teachers at Annunciation Catholic School in Kiln.

The Mississippi Department of Health, Physical Education and Recreation Consultant said the ultimate purpose of the physical education workshop is to prepare individuals to participate in physical activities after they graduate from school.

"I believe you need both a strong body and mind," emphasized Davis.

Davis uses a parachute in games called balloon, igloo and popcorn.

In balloon, the students grab the edge of a parachute and heave upward, thus creating a balloon effect.

Once the top of the parachute has risen a few of the students are instructed to trade holding positions before the parachute becomes deflated.

The igloo game also requires a quick heave upward of the parachute by students until the parachute floats above them.

After this is accomplished students crawl under the parachute becoming encased within the giant bag.

To play the popcorn game, students gather around the parachute holding its edges. Balls are placed on top of the parachute. Participants then try to force the balls to their opponents side by jerking on the parachute.

The brooms in Davis' arsenal are used to play floor hockey.

Records are used to enhance exercise drills.

All exercises are turned into a game during Davis' workshops, which may span from several hours to a few days.

"All the kids need is some encouragement," said Davis, "if the exercise is transformed into a game the students get involved."

"In addition to that," he continued, "the muscles and coordination used in the game develop skills an individual may later use in competitive sports."

Annunciation Principal Sister Rose Marion said she became aware Davis provided workshops, at no cost to the school, through a newsletter.

The principal said she was very pleased with Davis' performance, and participated in the class herself, "because he makes it so much fun."

Davis also instructed teachers in physical education skills.

The teachers will in turn use this in their physical education program.

Sister Rose Marion said she requested Davis come and conduct the workshop because she is striving to develop the physical education program at Annunciation.

Davis said he is available to any public school in Mississippi upon request.

Mrs. Singleton heads 'Wheels For Life' drive

Mrs. Claudia Singleton, 1979 St. Jude's "Wheels For Life" chairman for Bay St. Louis, Waveland and Lakeshore, said Thursday that officials were in error when they named Father Walter Bracken to head the event in Clermont Harbor.

In Thursday's Echo, Father Bracken is listed as the chairman for Clermont Harbor.

Mrs. Singleton said she contacted Bob Espey at St. Jude's, who reportedly said Father Bracken was assigned as chairman in error.

Mrs. Singleton said Espey told her that he did not realize Clermont Harbor and Bay St. Louis were so close together, and reportedly assigned Mrs. Singleton to head Clermont Harbor's fund drive as well as that for the Bay.

"This is just to clear up any confusion," Mrs. Singleton said Thursday.

The event, which raises funds for children's disease research, is slated for April 7.

Consultant teaches physical education utilizing games

By LESLIE WILLIAMS
A parachute, brooms, hoops, ropes, balls, and records with lyrics like "reach for fly, grab fly, pluck and stomp fly" were but a few devices used by Physical Education Consultant Kermit Davis during a recent workshop for students and teachers at Annunciation Catholic School in Kilm.

The Mississippi Department of Health, Physical Education and Recreation Consultant said the ultimate purpose of the physical education workshop is to prepare individuals to participate in physical activities after they graduate from school.

"I believe you need both a strong body and mind," emphasized Davis.

Davis uses a parachute in games called balloon, igloo and popcorn.

In balloon, the students grab the edge of a parachute and heave upward, thus creating a balloon effect.

Once the top of the parachute has risen a few of the students are instructed to trade holding positions before the parachute becomes deflated.

The igloo game also requires a quick heave upward of the parachute by students until the parachute floats above them.

After this is accomplished students crawl under the parachute becoming encased within the giant bag.

To play the popcorn game, students gather around the parachute holding its edges. Balls are placed on top the parachute. Participants then try to force the balls to their opponents side by jerking on the parachute.

The brooms in Davis' arsenal are used to play floor hockey.

Records are used to enhance exercise drills.

All exercises are turned into a game during Davis' workshops, which may span from several hours to a few days.

"All the kids need is some encouragement," said Davis, "if the exercise is transformed into a game the students get involved."

"In addition to that," he continued, "the muscles and coordination used in the game develop skills an individual may later use in competitive sports."

Annunciation Principal Sister Rose Marion said she became aware Davis provided workshops, at no cost to the school, through a newsletter.

The principal said she was very pleased with Davis' performance, and participated in the class herself, "because he makes it so much fun."

Davis also instructed teachers in physical education skills.

The teachers will in turn use this in their physical education program.

Sister Rose Marion said she requested Davis come and conduct the workshop because she is striving to develop the physical education program at Annunciation.

Davis said he is available to any public school in Mississippi upon request.

Mrs. Singleton heads 'Wheels For Life' drive

Mrs. Claudia Singleton, 1979 St. Jude's 'Wheels For Life' chairman for Bay St. Louis, Waveland and Lakeshore, said Thursday that officials were in error when they named Father Walter Bracken to head the event in Clermont Harbor.

In Thursday's Echo, Father Bracken is listed as the chairman for Clermont Harbor. Mrs. Singleton said she contacted Bob Espey at St. Jude's, who reportedly said Father Bracken was assigned as chairman in error.

Mrs. Singleton said Espey told her that he did not realize Clermont Harbor and Bay St. Louis were so close together and reportedly assigned Mrs. Singleton to head Clermont Harbor's fund drive as well as that for the Bay.

"This is just to clear up any confusion," Mrs. Singleton said Thursday.

The event, which raises funds for children's disease research, is slated for April 7.
